Stamford Museum & Nature Center „Fruitfulness“ von Nathalia Edenmont, Dienstag, 1. Oktober 2019

Only 25 minutes by car from Whites Plains, Stamford Museum & Nature Center is a beautiful place to enjoy the beauty of autumn in nature. In the Museum Gallery Bendel Mansion we will discover the fascinating exhibition of Natalia Edenmont "Fruitfulness". Natalia Edenmont was born in 1970 in the former Suwjet Union. Fearlessly awakening memories, Edenmont's repository of images are from her dreams, her own earlier works, art history and contemporary culture, and the DNA code she uses to build her powerful encyclopedia of life and loss. Her passion translates into powerful images that attract us with their beauty and capture us with their honesty. In each new series, it is as if she were a chrysalis challenging herself to emerge with different wings; her visions of Madonnas, paradise and support are exquisitely composed for her large format camera.

After a walk through the park of the Nature Center, which surrounds the Heckscher farm and the nature playground, we meet for a late breakfast at Isabelle Zemke's home. Our first tour of the year in the country will be a great opportunity for private conversations and meetings of new and old. Toddlers are welcome.
